Tentastic Partnership (TP)

Joey and Jennifer designed a new type of tent two years ago. The new tent is very easy to put up and take down and is made of a lightweight fabric material. They formed Tentastic Partnership (TP) to produce tents.

Joey manages the production. Jennifer manages the finance, human resources and the marketing of the tents. There are 20 workers in the factory and 2 workers in the office to help Jennifer. 10 of the factory workers are experienced and well-motivated, but the other 10 are new recruits who need constant supervision and on-the-job training.

The tent is aimed at young people who are backpacking (travelling around the world with bags on their backs). These young people often do not have much money to spend. This means they will often stay in tents instead of hotels or hostels. The tents need to be easy to carry because young travellers will have to carry all their clothes and camping equipment in the bags on their backs.

Joey and Jennifer want to make the factory larger as quickly as possible because sales are increasing. They think their tent is much better than competitors' tents. They are planning to change the pricing strategy. At present the tents are sold at a price just above the average cost of production. Some tents are sold on credit.

The tent manufacturing process uses new technology. Jennifer has to train workers in the production process.

Daily News

September 2015

A Government report states that there are an increasing number of young people backpacking and travelling around the world. They finish full-time education and want to travel before they get a permanent job.

Campsites and hostels have seen an increase in demand and their profits are high. More and more hostels and campsites are opening up to take advantage of this growing demand. Businesses in the camping industry forecast that the increasing popularity of camping will encourage older people to try this type of holiday.
